

Chris Stillion is a Safety Consultant specializing in lockout/tagout procedures. He's helping Safex clients by leveraging his vast industrial knowledge to keep people safe and on the job. He has extensive experience with developing safety policies and collaborating with employees from every level of the business to implement them successfully.

Prior to joining the Safex team in April 2022, Chris was a plant manager for an industrial conveyor belt manufacture, Accurate Industrial. He was responsible for ensuring safety compliance, identifying new safety concerns and suggesting or implementing resolutions. He led operations for the custom fabrication of machine guards for older pieces of equipment when there wasn't an off the shelf solution.

Chris is an Eagle Scout and graduated from South-Western City Schools Career Academy. He plans to pursue a degree in health and safety this year.
